The Charleston News.

TUESDAY, MARCH 25, 1873.

THE CHARLESTON DAILY NEWS "is designs ted as the newspaper for the publication of "all legal notices, and official advertisements, "for the County of Charleston, under the act of February 22d, 1870, entitled an act to regu-·late the publication of all legal and public "notices."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

-The Greeley statue committee in New York announce the receipt so far of $9546. -A special edict tolerating Christianity throughout Japan has been promulgated, and it is determined to throw the whole country open to foreigners. The government is en deavoring to form a code based upon European systems. A universal exhibition will be held in Japan, probably at Yeddo, within the next foor years.

-The Railroad Ticket and Passenger Agents' Association met in semi-annual convention, at Washington, on Friday last, fortyseven members holding oredentials being in attendance. The new constitution was adopted and signed. It binds the management to any arrangement as to rates which may be made by the convention. The body will remain in session several days. -An exciting horseback race recently took place in a Kentucky town between a sheriff and a lady, on whom he was endeavoring to serve a process. The lady, persisting that she would not receive the paper or hear it read, used the switch very vigorously on her horse, but the officer, being mounted on the better animal, caught up with her and continued in her company until he had read to her the contents of the official document

.The report of the department of agriculture for the present month promises to be an interesting and valuable one to the farming community. The subject of crop rotation and the extent of the use of various descriptions of fertilizers have been carefully examined, and the results will be given in the report. me of the causes of the late discouragements in agriculture will also be shown, and suggestions made of remedies embodying land and water connections of the city are the views of farmers from all parts of the in a satisfactory condition, and the steam-

-The London Economist, in noticing the effect of the high price of coal upon the railway companies' profits during the last half year, expresses the opinion that a sudden fall in coal will soon occur. "Every coal owner in the kingdom at this moment," it says, "is extending his output as much as possible." In point of fact, we hear on all sides of new pits and new workings to be opened, and of more and more laborers pressing for employment in the pits. "As the high price at the same time is notoriously restricting the consumption, it can only be a question of mon. when the supply will once more overtake the mand, and coal will slok from its monopoly price to a level with the cost of production.

-A general order, just issued from the war department, sets forth that the practice, which has prevailed to a considerable extent, of army officers visiting and remaining at the seat of government during sessions of Congress, with a view of influencing legislation upon military affairs concerning the whole army, and which have been or can be brought properly to the attention of Congress only by the President, secretary of war, or the general of the army, has become a serious evil, highly detrimental to the public service, and disrespectful to authority. It is, therefore, ordered that no officer, either active or retired, shall directly or indirectly, without being called upon by the proper authority, solicit, suggest, or recommend action by members of Congress for or against military affairs.

-The portion of Boston which was burned down is to be rebuilt on a plan originally devised by Sir Christopher Wren for London after the great fire. The blank space, which covers some sixty odd acres, is to be intersected by five streets, forming the radii of the segment of a circle, whose centre will be the stoffice, and whose circumference will pretty near correspond with the sea margin. The intervening streets will form the chords of the circle, running at equal distances from one another. In a word, the ground plan of the new town will be that of a cobweb. It will be a somewhat interesting experiment to try whether this scheme is reall : convenient one to meet the exigencies of traffic. Of course, the rectangular plan on which Babylon of old (teste Herodotus) was built possesses the great advantage of simplicity, and it is hardly conceivable that any one should lose his way in a town so constituted. On the other hand, such plan forbids all "short cuts," and unless the passenger happens to want to go in one of four straight lines, he must always lose the time represented by going city. One neighbor may, for the moment, round two sides of a triangle for every angle The cobweb ground plan will, in a great measure, obviate this evil, and might permit of great beauty in the points of sight at the termination of the chief vista-as where the

The devices of a certain class of boarding house-keepers in New York City who depend upon immigrants for their patronage, have ntly been made the subject of inquiry. It is stated that one Reinhardt, the keeper of city, systematically dispatches runners to Europe who return as emigrants, and, making the acquaintance of fellow-steerage passengers, invelgle them on their arrival into Reinhardt's. One of these runners, it is alleged, returned a short time since on a steamer which brought over two hundred passengers, nearly all of whom went to this hotel. On the passage he gave the emigrants the impression that they would receive attention at this hotel, and find every facility for procuring rallroad tickets and making the necessary arrangements for prosecuting their journey. He occupied one of the officer's rooms, and spent a great deal of money in treating the passengers to lager beer and refreshments. After arriving care was taken that the immigrants should go to the hotel, and there they are charged a high price for their board and other necessaries, and made to pay an excessive rate of exchange. They are induced to remain in the city until little more can be made out of them, or until their baggage is no longer good security, and then allowed to that Charleston lagged in the commercial proceed on their journey. Nearly all these extra charges are said to be entirely unnecessary, as arrangements are provided by the proper authorities for changing money, buylng tickets and transferring persons and baggage without extra charge.

The Trade and Commerce of Charleston.

The Chamber of Commerce has published a handsome pamphlet of eighty-five pages, containing the report of the special committee of the Chamber appointed to collect statistical information relating to the trade and commerce of Charleston. This report, with the accompanying tables, shows the course of business in produce and manufactures during the past seven years, and furnishes a sure basis for determining the condition and prospects of the city. In the opinion of the Committee the results are "eminently "enccuraging," and no candid reader of the report will deny that much-decried Charleston has steadily improved in mercantile strength and general prosperity. Immediately following the formal report of the Committee, which is well worthy of an attentive perusal, come the statistics of the cotton trade of the port. These, with the explanatory remarks, give a clear view of the entire business, in long and short cotton, for each year, from 1865-'66 to 1871-'72. The receipts at all the ports each year are given; also, the monthly receipts at Charleston, the number of bales received by the various railroad and steamboat lines, and the exports in each year to foreign and domestic ports. It is gratifying to note that the receipts at this port have increasefi from 111,714 bales, or 5 per cent. of the crop, in 1865-'66, to 282,086 bales, or ten per cent. of the crop in 1871-'72. The receipts of Local cotton have increased 90,000 bales. Upon the subject of rice the information is likewise full and complete. The receipts and exports for the seven years are given, and show that the receipts have increased from 4019 tierces in 1865-'66 to 42,677 tierces in 1871-'72. In the lumber trade the improvement is very marked; the exports being 18,460,339 feet in 1871-'72, against 8,389,171 feet in 1865-'66. The naval stores business has developed itself with amazing rapidity. In 1865-'66 the exports were only 32,136 barrels; last year they were 147,910 barrels. The wholesale jobbing and grocery trade is in a flourishing condition. In the work of rebuilding, Charleston has made considerable progress as is shown by the fact that last year nearly half a million dollars were laid out for new buildings and repairs. The work of improving and deepening Charleston bar has begun. Truck farming, a business which has sprang up since the war, gives employment to three hundred laborers, and the year, amounted to 216,974 packages. The ship lines have no superiors, if they have any equals, on the South Atlantic coast. The banking capital of the city amounts to about three and a half million dollars, and the deposits are nearly three millions. The factories and machine shops have steadily increased in numbers and in size; the machine shops and sash and blind factories alone turn out manufactured articles to the value of $660,000 a year. The magnitude and importance of the trade in South Carolina Phosphates, crude and manufactured, are fully explained. It is shown that nearly two hundred and fifty thousand tons of crade rock have been shipped. Six companies, with a capital of $4,000,000, are engaged here in the manu-

the state of the Retail trade, the number of persons engaged in the different trades and professions, and the like. It is not practicable, in this place, to do more than direct attention to the various departments of the report, and to glance at the general conclusions which the facts and figures warrant. Explanatory remarks accompany the statistical tables, and the information upon every point is the fullest that the committee could obtain. The report upon the rise and progress of the Phosphate business is especially full, and entitles the compiler to hearty thanks. The moral of the report, its practical application, is not hard to find. It is not merely that Charleston has, year by year, increased her receipts of Cotton and Rice and sundries. There is something beyond this, viz: that Charleston relies for her commercial prosperity upon many branches of trade, and not upon one alone. This city is not dependent upon Cotton or Rice or Lumber or Phosphates or Naval Stores or the Jobbing buslness. It is the union and combination of these different branches of trade which give Charleston a broader and deeper foundation than is enjoyed by any other South Atlantic exceed Charleston in the receipt of Naval Stores; but what has that neighbor to set against the wholesale business of this city?

Another neighbor may receive more through tion concerning the Charleston Rice mills,

> We are satisfied that the Chamber of Commerce will be warmly praised for the good work it has now brought to a close-that of laying before the public a candid and impartial exhibit of the progress, condition and prospects of the city. A more important statistical work has never been prepared in the South, and we are confident that it will, directly and indirectly, be of incalculable benefit to every business man and owner of property in Charleston. It will refute the malicious statements which are in circulation, and, by its unvarnished truth, give conclusive answer to those who have thought race. This is the task which the Chamber of Commerce undertook, and we congratulate the body upon the satisfactory manner in which a difficult duty has been performed

Our National Park.

A year ago Congress-one of its very few wise acis-set apart the magnificent region of the Yellowstone River as a National Park. This prevented at once the title of settlers accruing, and checked speculators in making a show of this most extraordinary scenery for private gain. The National Park of the Yellowstone can, therefore, never be made another Niagara, where hackmen are ever importunate, and every little thing has a money value, ranging from flity cents up to five dollars. The first report of the superintendent of the National Park has just been published. At present access to the Park is only possible through Montana. The first effort will be to render the approach less difficult by constructing carriage roads instead of the present bridle paths. In the meanwhile a thorough exploration of the whole track will be made. At present part of the land belonging to the government is entirely unknown. What has been seen, however, is strange and novel beyond conception. Great Geysers, to which those of Iceland are pigmies; mud volcanoes, crystal springs, and medicinal waters of all descriptions and temperatures; immense and frowning canons; falls of nearly four hundred feet in height, make it appear as if nature had concentrated her wonders there.

The "Confederate Chiefs." A Radical paper, having asked a certain question, the Tribune, of New York, answers it, and a very effectual answer it is too-short, sharp, and to the point. The question was as to what use the "Confederate chiefs" were making of the clemency of the government, the Radical paper, of course, presuming that the party to which it belongs had the right to exercise a general supervision over these gentlemen, as if they were a parcel of school boys. The Tribune thinks, in answer to the query, that "the chiefs" are engaged in trying to secure a respectable livelihood. Mr. Davis is president of an insurance company. Mr. Stephens is writing for a newspaper. Messrs. Beauregard and Bragg superintend street rallways, Hood is a cotton factor, Hill keeps school, Ben Hill practices law, so does Semmes, Forrest keeps a livery stable, H. V. Johnson is a planter. Other names and avocations are mentioned, but these are enough.

I tried a number of alteratives, as lodide of potassium and lime. I discontinued all other constitutional treatment, and gave three pills three times a day, manufactured by W. R. Warner & Co., of Philadelphia. I soon had the satisfaction of seeing a rapid improvement. The pain at once left her limb, with which she had suffered continually; the granulations became more healthy and more abundant, and I now have the satisfaction of seeing my patient engaging in all her bousehold duties.
